Bihar to Join Eco-Textile Revolution with Plant-Based Milk Fiber Fabric

भारत खतरा पहल... पहले चरण में लुधियाना में काम शुरू, दूसरे चरण में दिल्ली-यूपी में उत्पादन
पौधों के दूध से बनेगा कपड़ा... पशुमिनी से हल्का होगा

आज के जमाने में फैशन के साथ-साथ पर्यावरण के प्रति चेतना बढ़ रही है। इसी कारण से लोग अब सिर्फ फैशन के लिए कपड़े नहीं पहनते, बल्कि पर्यावरण के दोस्त कपड़े पहनना चाहते हैं। इसी सोच से उत्पन्न हुआ है 'प्लैंट-बेस्ड मिल्क फाइबर'। यह एक नया प्रकार का कपड़ा है, जो पशुमिनी के बजाय पौधों के दूध से बनाया जाता है। यह कपड़ा न केवल पर्यावरण के दोस्त है, बल्कि यह बहुत ही हल्का और आरामदायक भी है।

इस नए कपड़े के पीछे एक बड़ा वैज्ञानिक प्रयोग है। वैज्ञानिकों ने पौधों के दूध को एक विशेष प्रक्रिया के माध्यम से फाइबर में बदल दिया है। यह प्रक्रिया बहुत ही जटिल है, लेकिन इससे एक ऐसा फाइबर तैयार होता है जो पशुमिनी के बराबर ही है, लेकिन पर्यावरण के दोस्त है।

India's textile industry is moving towards an innovative and sustainable future with development of "milk weed fiber" derived from latex of plants like madar, neem, jackfruit, and semal. This eco-friendly fiber, now being developed in Ludhiana, promises to produce fabrics that are lighter than pashmina and warmer than wool. The process involves converting plant-based latex into powder, removing fats, dehydrating, fermenting to extract proteins, and then spinning it into fiber that resembles silk in texture and sheen. Resulting fabric is not only biodegradable and durable but also gentle on skin, making it ideal for those with skin sensitivities or conditions. If successful, initiative will be expanded to states like Bihar, Uttar Pradesh, and Madhya Pradesh, with plans for global exports to countries including Russia, the US, Germany, Australia, and several African and Gulf nations. According to Hon'ble Union Textile Minister Shri Giriraj Singh, this project has potential to establish India as a global leader in natural, sustainable textile production
